4. Recovery Strategies

1. Accept Revised Schedule

Accept the revised finish date of November 18, 2026, for the final event preparation without altering any task durations or dependencies.

Affected tasks: TASK-002, TASK-004, TASK-005

Benefits: Maintains original task durations; Avoids complex schedule compression efforts; Finishes comfortably before the project deadline of November 30, 2026

Risks: Delays the completion date by 2 days compared to the original schedule

2. Fast-Track Dependent Tasks

Overlap Event Promotion with Venue Booking once preliminary venue details are known, attempting to claw back the 2 days lost.

Affected tasks: TASK-002, TASK-004

Benefits: Potentially recovers the 2-day delay; Keeps final preparation on the original timeline

Risks: Violates strict dependency rules if dependencies are immutable; Increases risk of promotion errors if venue details change during promotion

Recommendation: The 'Accept Revised Schedule' strategy is recommended because the project still finishes well ahead of the November 30, 2026 deadline, avoiding the risks and dependency violations associated with schedule compression.
